

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND

philosophy | matters

Voting Counts

Eric Pacuit

ASST. PROFESSOR
DEPARTMENT OF PHILOSOPHY

Piotr Swistak

ASSOC. PROFESSOR
DEPARTMENT OF GOVERNMENT AND POLITICS

WED. 3/29/17
@ 3:30 PM
1101 TYDINGS

Democracy rests on the notion that the will of the people is reflected in the process of governing. Voting is an efficient means to access the preferences of the populace. But, differences of voting can have drastically different outcomes, even holding fixed people's preferences. Is there an optimal method for capturing the people's will by voting?

